DIRECTOR

HEAD OF THE DEPARTMENT

Oral communication in particular is about the construction of messages and meaning between communicators and various audiences. The study of communication focuses on understanding the symbols as well as the processes that work to construct those meanings, whether the symbol is a word, a gesture, an utterance, a performance, an argumentative speech, or any other artifact of meaning-making in the social world. We also examine the relationship of those symbols to the people who use them (sometimes effectively, sometimes not).

With an emphasis on performance engagement, academic integrity and “scholarly conversation” (bringing in credible sources and citing them in presentations and other activities), the Communication Department is committed to facilitating and furthering students’ abilities to reason effectively, research a topic or issue, adapt the message to the audience, and deliver an informed, critical, ethically sound presentation in line with the various goals and mandates

Program Objective :

- The Speaking-Intensive Program will enhance student learning:
- The Speaking-Intensive Program will provide students with the knowledge of theory and principles necessary for them to understand how to communicate more effectively:
- The Speaking-Intensive Program will provide students with sufficient and appropriate opportunities to develop an appreciation of the importance of oral communication in both academic and non-academic settings:
- The Speaking-Intensive Program will provide students with a variety of contexts in which they may obtain and practice oral communication skills:
- The Speaking-Intensive Program will provide appropriate support for offering Speaking-Intensive courses across-the-curriculum:
