75TH INDEPENDENCE DAY

Performance by Students of Akkineni Nageswara Rao College, Gudivada on Independence Day. Some feel that just waving a national flag doesn't make one patriotic. We don't know how hard the freedom fighters fought to liberate the country. The flag of a nation is its symbol. The tri colour represents several ideals for which our forefathers fought valiantly with the British. A kind of patriotic fervor is being recreated by making students enact such group activities.

AWARENESS ON CONSUMER RIGHTS

Meaning of Consumer Awareness:

Consumer Awareness is a demonstration of ensuring the purchaser or buyer knows about the data and information about items, products, administrations, and buyers' privileges. Consumer awareness is significant with the goal that purchasers can settle on the best choice and settle on the ideal decision. Shoppers reserve the privilege to data or information, the option to pick, right to wellbeing.

The Prerequisite for Customer Protection:

- The shopper or the end consumer is the main component in business. No business can make do without purchasers as their fulfilment is the fundamental reason for any business activity.
- Business isn't just with regards to money-related advantages yet additionally updating society to a superior variant by keeping its welfare as a goal.
- The Constitution has given us the Consumer Protection act 1986 to shield the customers from any promoting misbehaviours.
- Consumer protection rights advance a solid aggressive market that upholds financial development. It wards off pernicious exchange practices and deceitful entrepreneurs from harming reasonable or fair trade or exchange.
- Shoppers are an essential piece of a market structure. It is vital to secure their privileges and rights to have a reasonable or fair market structure.

What are Consumer Rights?

The Consumer Protection Act 1986 was sanctioned by the Parliament of India in 1986 to safeguard the interests of consumers in India. According to our economy, the perfect measure of demand with consistent and dependable supply can aid the development of the economy. Henceforth, to shield the purchasers from any kind of abuse or exploitation, this act was presented.

Types of Consumer Rights:

Right to Information:

The buyer has an option to get data about the quality, amount, strength, standard, and cost of the products or services. The buyer ought to legitimately ask for getting all the data about the product or service prior to settling on a decision or a choice. This will empower him to make very much educated and thoughtful choices, and furthermore, keep himself from succumbing to high-pressure selling methods. The right to data is utilised to protect shoppers from tricky promotions, deluding marks and bundling, excessive costs, and so on.

Right to Choose:

This right gives admittance to all the assortment of products and services and cutthroat costs. In a monopolistic market, the products and services ought to be of the best quality and cost.

The dealer ought not to utilise forceful methods to see the items, and buyers ought to reserve the privilege to all the assortment of choices, substitutions, and alternatives. This right requires free competition in the market. The customer ought to have a free decision in picking a product from the market.

Right to be Heard:

The other rights are pointless in the event that there could be no appropriate power to pay attention to client complaints. Assuming a purchaser is disappointed with the service or a product, then, at that point, one has the option to document a grievance against it, and it must be tended to inside a set time period. For example, assuming that a shopper purchases an electronic item and it begins breaking down, a customer has all privileges to make a fitting move by returning or supplanting it.

Right to Seek Redressal:

This right gives power to the buyers to settle any cases, complaints, and claims against dealers for their out-of-line exchange practices and double-dealing or exploitation. The purchaser has the privilege to review in case the nature of the item is compromised. Buyers need to document an objection under the Consumer Protection Act.

Right to Customer Education:

A purchaser should know about his freedoms and obligations given by the authorities with respect to advertising and marketing practices. This is a vital right as this sets out the establishment for reasonable exchange or trade practices as a customer knows about his freedoms or rights. The customer has all the positions and authority to acquire information about his privileges and rights as a purchaser.

Right to Safety:

This is a fundamental right to be ensured against the advertising of such products and services, which are perilous to life and property. Utilisation or consumption of products and services which are not up to standard can effectively affect the shopper's wellbeing and security. To secure the shoppers' interest, they reserve an option to get top calibre and dependable merchandise. For example, household products like LPG cylinders, if not fixed as expected, can cause massive harm to life and property; stale food products can hurt purchasers' wellbeing; low-quality beauty care products can cause comparative damages.
